How to Get Recycled Water

Prior to filling up, you must first review the Recycled Water Filling Station Training Program information (sandiego.gov/residential-recycled-water) describing regulations for the use of recycled water and attend a brief training at the fill station site. You must also verify that you are a City of San Diego customer, certify that you have reviewed proper recycled water use procedures and receive a fill station card and stickers that are to be placed on any water containers that will be transporting recycled water. To receive the items mentioned above, please bring the following to the fill station on your first visit:

1. A copy or printout of your Public Utilities billing statement (phone screenshots are acceptable);
2. Valid identification with an address matching the billing statement;
3. A Residential Recycled Water Use Application and Agreement Form (sandiego.gov/residential-recycled-water). Please print and complete prior to arriving at the station. If you are unable to print the form, blank forms are available at the fill station; and
4. Container(s) that you will use to transport recycled water from the fill station. Please note that containers are limited to one to 300 gallons in size, they may not leak and must have watertight lids.

Bring your documentation to the residential fill station during the hours of operation mentioned on the reverse side. An on-site attendant will provide a brief training, review your documentation and issue your fill station user card. Fill station user cards are available at no cost and are non-transferable.

The on-site attendant will also provide stickers to be affixed to your containers indicating that the containers have been approved for recycled water use.

On subsequent visits, the on-site attendant will check your identification and your fill station user card, and will verify that your containers feature the appropriate sticker. Stickers for additional containers may be obtained on subsequent visits.

Recycled water is available only to City of San Diego customers for their personal use at their property.

On-site attendants will be available at the residential fill station during the hours of operation to assist customers with information. Customers must fill their own containers. There is no limit to the number of visits that a customer can make.
