Planning group members are required to be "COW-certified" by attending an annual Community Orientation Workshop (COW) within 12 months of being elected or appointed to the planning group. The purpose of the training is to ensure compliance with CP 600-24 and the Brown Act, and to strengthen legal defense and indemnification of members (O-19833). In addition to the annual COW meeting, planning group members may meet this requirement by taking the online Electronic COW (E-COW).

Topics covered at the COW/E-COW include the basics of planning practice, an overview of the City's governmental structure, the role of the General Plan and Community Plans, the discretionary and ministerial permit process, the California Environmental Quality Act, the regulatory and enforcement functions for the City, and the rules and regulations governing the City's planning group process, as embodied in CP 600-24. Information regarding the COW can be found at: <http://www.sandiego.gov/planning/community/resources/cow/index.shtml>
